SOUTER'S STATEMENT.

The Bankrupt Banker Will Require Some Weeks to Discover His Own Condition.

The residence of Mr. J. H. Squier, senior and only known member of the broken banking firm of J. H. Squier & Co., is one of the handsomest in the aristocratic locality of K street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth The front of the house is beautified with English tvy and blooming roses, and below the door bell, upon a silver plate, is the name Squier," in large Roman text letters.

A REPUBLICAN reporter pulled at this door bell yesterday afternoon. His summons was auswored by a colored servant girl.
"Can I see Mr. Squier?" the reporter asked.

"Mr. Squier left about half an hour ago for the bank," was the answer.

At the bank, on Ponnsylvania avenue, Mr. Squier was seen behind the counter seated at a table with his chief clork, busily engaged in looking over a lot of papers. It was the first time he had been out since his illness, and he looked pale.

"I can give you no statement to-day," replied Mr. Squier in answer to an interroga-

"How long will it be before you have a statement ready?"

statement ready?"
"I think it will require several weeks to finish it?" replied the ex-banker.

Before the reporter entered the bank, a gentleman passed out. He said he had called to get someting about Mr. Squier's business. Several depositors in the bank called during the afternoon. The bank presented a very unhealthy appearance to the depositors. Not a dollar of money either in paper or coin could anywhere be seen. The doors of the large iron safe were open, but instead of containing solid cash the value of the safe and taining solid cash the value of the safe and its contents would not loom up as an item of much interest upon the books of an auctioneer. The desorted appearance of the bank was somewhat relieved by a number of business littiographs and cards hung about the walls.

business lithographs and cards hung about the walls.

J. II. Squier, the ex-banker, yesterday substituted trustees under a deed of trust in a way differing from the custom provailing here, which has been through the equity court. In July, 1874, to secure a note for $12,000 to the Grard Fire and Marine Insurance company, he gave a deed of trust on lot 10, square 199, with Messrs. R. C. Willson and L. C. Tallmadge as trustees. Later on the note was indorsed by A. B. Greenwell, and subse quently the trustees ordered to be released. In order to accommodate them a new deed ot trust was made, with Messrs. A. L. Merriman and C. Storrs as trustees.

St. Louis vs. Washington, Athletic park to-day. A LEVIS LEGACY.

A Suit Growing Out of Some of the Oil Broker's Cheeks.

Gen. Wm. W. Averille has entered suit against the Second National bank to recover $1,000, and the cause of action opens another page in the history of Levis-Buruside's oil syndicate transactions. It seems that Mr. M. D. Helm had certain business transactions with Gen. Averille, and on Thursday of the week preceding the Levis explosion in oil gave the general two checks drawn by Levis, payable to the order of Mr. Helm, for $1,000 each. One check was payable on demand, but the other was not available before the ensuing Monday, and both checks were drawn on the Second National bank, where Levis kept an account. Gen. Averille intended leaving the evening he received the checks for New York, and went to the Second National bank, where he was late arriving. He however, got the check available cashed. The other, due the ensuing Monday, was deposited for collection. At the same time he signed the signature book and opened an account, with the understanding that he could draw against the $1,000 at any time, also that he would make other deposits later. make other deposits later.

Gen. Averille found his stay in New York state protracted to a week, and when he returned the Lovis bubble had burst, and duped financiers were hunting their lost cash. He also found that the check left with the bank for collection on the Monday after his visit had been protested. There were other circumstances, however, which mystified him and did not satisfactorily explain the protest. The child had been left on a Thursday to be paid the ensuing Mou-day, and should have been paid as soon as banking hours commenced on that day. He found upon inquiry that Levis, on that morning, had over $6,000 to his credit in the bank, and about noon of that day Col. Liurnside's presented a that day Col. Marisides presented a check of Levis's for 86,000 and received the money on it. Gen. Averille cannot under-stand why his check, which had been lying in the bank for three days, was not paid and Col. Burnside's was favored. He claims that of the amount paid the latter $1,000 was due him from Levis's account, and it is under him from Levis's account, and it is under these circumstances that his attorneys, Messrs, John F. Ennis and E. A. Newman, have brought suit against the bank to recover the same.

The Peril of the States.

The commercial papers seem to be alarmed in regard to the "Peril of the States," consequent upon the recent legal tender decision of the supreme court, as if patriotism were the exclusive patrimony of the commercial community.

It is the same old cry of interest and principal under the guise of principle. The ultimate right to make anything a legal tender is one that no sovereignty can afford to forego; the policy of its exercise must be governed by circumstances. Having unbounded confidence in the value of greenbacks, they are heartily appreciated in unlimited quantities, either in payment of debts or in the purchase of goods by Henning, the clothier, 410 Seventh street. A Break

We desire to state that we have met no club, nor taken any action with any movement to establish a club. THE STREET CAR SEIZURE. A Director Explains the Differences Be-payment of taxes has been, according to Mr. A. M. Clapp, one of the directors, detrimental to the reputation and business interests of the company, and he gives the following the company, and he gives the following explanation of the affair:

"One year ago the district government made an assessment of personal tax on this company for the year ending June 30, 1884, which was not objected to by the company, and which was paid up to Jan, I, 1884, and receipted therefor in full by the collector of taxes. Subsequently, but not within the time prescribed by law, the commissioners gave notice of a revision of this tax, increasgave notice of a revision of this tax, increasing it ten fold. To this the company demurred, for the reason that they regarded it not only as illegal, but excessive. It then tendered to the collector of taxes the second tendered to the collector of taxes the second half of tax for the year under the advice of counsel. This was redused by the collector, and a levy was made for the excessive tax upon the cars of the company, giving credit for the amount paid and receipted for by the collector in full for the first six months of the year, and after a tender had been made by the company for the full year in accordance with the terms of the original assessment. The company as soon as practicable ment. The company, as soon as practicable after this levy, replevined its property, and the read was in operation again after an interruption of some six hours. If this table, but been regarded as legal and just it would have been paid promptly, as this company ways all legal and prompt taxes without pays all legal and proper taxes without

Mr. John W. Thompson's Trip Abroad. Mr. John W. Thompson and his daughter, Miss Ida, will leave the city this afternoon and will sail for Europe on Saturday. Mr. Thompson has for years been identified with the material prosperity of the district and is recognized as one of Washington's most enterprising and solid citizens. His long connection with the Metropolitan Railroad company, the success of which is mainly due company, the success of which is mainly due to his energetic and careful administration as president; his management of the Inland and Seaboard Coasting company, a purely district organization, and his career as presi-dent of the Metropolitan National bank have given him an enviable standing as a shrewd, upright, and sagacious business mass. In every movement to add to the welfare or improvement of the national capital, Mr improvement of the national capital, Mr. Thompson has been always found among the most active workers, ready to contribute with his advice and money. His trip abroad is to obtain needed rest, sud it is to be hoped that he will return greatly improved in mental and physical vigor. During Mr. Thompson's absence his brother, Mr. William Thompson's absence his brother, Mr. William Thompson's absence his brother, Mr. William

Thompson, will occupy his desk at the bank. Yesterday the directors of the bank pre-sented Mr. Thompson with a handsome trav-eling satchel and a compass heavily mounted in gold as slight souvenirs of their regard, Mr. B. H. Warner, who made the presentation speech, paying a high tribute to Mr. Thomp-son's successful conduct of the affairs of the bank, his executive ability, his business sancity, and his honorable, upright char-acter. Though the affair was informal the occasion was interesting as indicating the high value the directors place upon Mr. Thompson's ability as president of the bank, and also the warm feeling they entertain for him personally. him personally.

PUTTING OUT THE FIRE.

ISLE OF WIGHT! Flerce Flames Extinguished by Breaking Bottles Filled with Gas.

Another test was made yesterday afternoon of the Hayward hand grenade fire extingisher on a lot at the intersection of G and tween the Company and the Govern- North Capitol streets and just south of the government printing office.

On the lot was a frame house improvised from a number of parlor organ boxes, also a vessel filled with tar, a can of kerosone oil, and several boxes containing the hand greaades. Mr. Arthur C. Webb, manager of the branch office on F street, and his colored man John were busy for some time in getting ready for the exhibition. The colored man smeared the exterior of the house with tar, upon which Ms. Webb afterward threw a quantity of keresene oil. The kindling wood was split and placed in position.

THE PATTERSON CLAIM. The District Commissioners Show Why

It Should not be Allowed. The commissioners have returned the bill for the relief of Mrs. Patterson to the President, with an accompanying letter. They regret the necessity for criticising any bill, but say that duty compels them to call the President's attention to the injustice to the President's attention to the injustice to the bill. When the bill passed the house, they say, it was supposed that of the property of the petitioner five entire squares in Washington had been overassessed for taxation, and had been seriously injured by sewer and street improvements, upon oradjacent thereto, by the diversion of a stream of water therefrom. While the commissioners dissented from that view, they did not learn the fact, and could not advise the house before it passed the bill, that those squares had been donated to the petitioner after all those occurrences, and subject to all burdens, if any, that existed. They think the senate passed the bill relying on the house report. passed the bill relying on the house report. They think that there is no just basis or ground to donate $34,000 of lawful taxes due the district from the petitioner, except from sympathy for the lady. They submit that if such should be the case, the United States should do it, and not the district. It would be an easier task, they say, to allow this mis-take to pass, if such mistakes should ever pass. But, considered as a precedent, it is quite too important, even though the amount involved were ten times less, and the com-missioners earnestly beg the President's serious attention to their representations, and ask that he will withhold his approval from this bill, and resubmit the same to con-
